U. S. POWER AT SEA BEGINNING TO TAKE FORM

Vinson Reports on Vast Increase of American Striking Power.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—[illegible] the Solomon islands [illegible] forecasts of the shape [illegible] to come," Chairman [illegible]-Ga) of the house naval [illegible] committee declared today [illegible] statement on the [illegible] expansion program.

The Chairman's statement, asserting that "at sea we are be[illegible] to turn the corner," was [illegible] reporters after Presi[illegible]velt had requested yes[illegible] an additional $2,731,154,- [illegible] the navy's current [illegible] appropriation to a record [illegible] approximately $17,000,-

"We are now pushing our great[illegible] augmented program of naval [illegible] with the utmost speed [illegible] command," Vinson said. "When it is completed and joins forces with the British and other allied navies, it will give the United Nations a more nearly global strength at sea than the world has ever seen, and seapower welded by ships and aircraft, is the anvil on which the decision in this global war is being hammered out."

Sees U-Boat Menace Ended

Vinson predicted the new navy would give the United States "the [illegible] escort and patrol craft needed to put an end to the U-boat menace" and "will enable us to take the offensive with superior forces in any theater we choose."

"When the new land front is hammered in the west of Europe," he said, "it is sea-power that will launch it. Sea-power will transport the men and material needed to the point of attack. To keep them flowing in an unbroken stream until the whole axis edifice has crashed, America and the other United Nations must have sea-power in overwhelming strength, far beyond challenge by any force that Berlin, Rome and Tokyo can bring against it."

Already, he declared, we have taken the offensive in the Solomons and "there for the first time we have wrested the initiative from the enemy, and our new navy should enable us to retain the initiative right to the end."

On June 30, 1941, Vinson said, a United States not at war had 287 combat, auxiliary, patrol and mine vessels building, while on June 30, 1942, there were 3,230 vessels in this category under construction in addition to 218 being built for allied nations. This, he added, does not include 11,659 smaller vessels under construction.

Counting all types of planes, he went on, "we added 4,895 new aircraft to the navy's air arm in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1942, as compared with 2,067 in the preceding year."

Plant expansion, he said, "is rapidly building up to an output of just under 2,000 navy planes a month," with the navy "getting its full share of President Roosevelt's program calling for 81,000 planes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943."

He described the navy's combat airplanes as "unexcelled in performance, striking power and equipment," with the new torpedo bomber being "perhaps the most lethal weapon yet devised for action against surface vessels."

Long-range carrier-type and patrol planes, he said, are being produced in sufficient numbers to supply our bases from Iceland to South America and from Alaska to the Indian ocean."

HARDIN CO. MAN UP FOR NAVY PROMOTION

Kent C. Melhorn Is Recommended by Roosevelt.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Sept. 22—Kent C. Melhorn, former Kenton man and the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Melhorn of Hardin county, has been nominated by President Roosevelt for promotion from medical director to rear admiral in the navy.

Melhorn, who has been in charge of the medical supply depot in Brooklyn for one year, has been in the naval service for about 35 years. He was formerly health sanitation officer of Haiti and before that was senior medical officer of the Pacific fleet for two tours of duty. According to word received by friends here recently, Melhorn is expected to be transferred to new and undisclosed duties about Oct. 1.

He is the first and only rear admiral in Hardin county history. He is 62 years old.

Melhorn was in Kenton early in August to attend funeral services of his mother, Mrs. Laura Melhorn, who died Aug. 5.

Italy Fears She Won't Get Share of French Territory

Semi-Official Press Fires Blast at Vichy; Sees Little Hope of Nazi Support.

By The Associated Press

BERN, SWITZERLAND, Sept. 22—A bitter tirade against France by a semi-official Italian publication was interpreted today as revealing Italy's growing dissatisfaction with what she has gotten out of the axis and her dwindling hopes of winning any material dividends from participation in the war.

This conclusion was drawn by experienced observers from an article which appears in the weekly foreign affairs journal, Relazione Internationale, and which, though directed at France, lacked any expression of faith that the Nazis would support Italy's war ambitions.

The article, voicing a fear known to have been widely held for some time in Italy, expressed belief that Pierre Laval, French chief of government, is cooperating with the Germans in the hope of winning the upper hand over Italy and foiling Italian territorial ambitions.

Makes Three Points

Relazione's viewpoint coincided in many ways with views generally held in United Nations quarters. It made three points:

1. The "patriotic ideal" of Frenchmen is that France is now bound to the Anglo-Saxons in "obstinate opposition" to the Nazi new order.

2. Laval knows this and is cooperating with the Germans while at the same time trying to make

HOSPITAL ADDITION OKAYED AT CHICAGO

Sent to Washington with Favorable Recommendation.

Marion's application for a federal grant to build a temporary addition to Marion City hospital has been approved by the regional FWA office in Chicago and has been forwarded to Washington, D. C., with a "favorable recommendation" for final approval.

As approved by the Chicago regional defense public works division of the federal works administration, the recommendation is for a government grant of $140,300 "to assist in construction of a 50-bed addition, estimated cost, $172,300, the applicant to furnish $32,000."

Mayor Russell C. Snare, who received notice of the approval this morning in a letter from H. Christiansen, acting regional engineer, said that the $32,000 which Marion will be asked to furnish, includes a credit for $10,000 for furnishing the site.

Request for federal funds to construct the temporary addition was filed in Chicago Aug. 4 by Mayor Snare and Thomas McLaughlin, Lima architect.

NEW RENT RULING IS RECEIVED HERE

Applies To Fixing of First Rental Charge.

Landlords putting housing accommodations on the rental market for the first time in the Marion defense rental area no longer need to have the first rent charge fixed by the area director.

An amendment to federal rent control regulations was received this morning by John K. Bartram, Marion area director, from the OPA.

Mr. Bartram emphasized that the order applies only to housing accommodations, not to hotels and rooming houses.

The amendment also does away with the same regulation for housing accommodations which have been changed, resulting in an increase or decrease in living units. Heretofore landlords were required to make application for the rental charge 15 days before renting a housing unit.

However, according to the order received today, landlords who set the first rent must register at the rent control office at 304 West Center street within 30 days after renting the property. If the rental charge is found to be out of line with other rentals of comparable property, it will be adjusted by the director.

PLANS DRAWN FOR ROUNDUP OF ALL METAL

Map Cleanup Salvage Campaign To Reach Every House and Business Place.

Plans for an "all out" scrap metal drive in Marion county in which every house and business place will be contacted in an intensive three-week campaign took form rapidly today.

Developments came from all quarters in meetings yesterday and today, and although arrangements were made for many phases of the work, the whole plan must go before a committee directing the unified drive for approval before it becomes official.

Campaign Plan

Here are some of the highlights of the tentative plans:

The Marion county drive is scheduled to open on Monday, Sept. 28, and continue on an intensive basis for three weeks. Some phases of the work may not be finished by Oct. 17, the end of the three-week period, but drive officials believe most of the job will be done.

The rural schools and the community leaders set up by the county farm agent's office have accepted the responsibility of contacting every Marion county home outside the city of Marion. In addition, the schools will have scrap piles at each building and many older pupils will be released from some of their classes on Oct. 5, 6 and 7 and possibly on other days to help assemble scrap piles on farms where the quantity of metal available makes it impractical to cart it to a school scrap pile.

The Marion city schools will conduct a comparable campaign in the city. It appeared likely today that the elementary schools would be assigned to the job in the residential district and that the senior high school and possibly the junior highs would center on the business district, which has not yet been canvassed thoroughly at any time. Supt. E. F. Holt of the city schools said his senior and junior high school principals would discuss their part of the drive this afternoon. He met with the elementary principals yesterday and discussed the drive briefly with them.

Weather a Vital Factor

Throughout all preparations for the drive, emphasis is being placed on the urgency of getting the scrap metal into commercial channels before winter. Already some factories have been kept idle for short periods because of the lack of scrap iron.

The requirements of war industries for the coming winter are immense, and salvage officials point out that gathering scrap material will be a far easier job now than during the winter months. "Get the scrap in before the snow flies" is rapidly becoming one of the campaign slogans

Nelson Message Emphasizes Vital Demand for Scrap

A personal message emphasizing the importance of the scrap metal campaign was received by The Star today in a telegram from Donald M. Nelson, war production board chairman, in Washington, D. C.

His message said, in part: "If we are to maintain and increase production of the planes, tanks and ships needed by our fighting men and fighting allies, we must get in every pound of scrap in this country—from the homes, from the farms and from industry. A successful fall campaign conducted by the American Newspapers, in cooperation with state and local salvage committees, will avert a serious decline in steel production and will add to our stores of other scarce materials.

"As chairman of the war production board, I call upon every citizen of the United States to make this campaign a success, by getting in all the scrap and [illegible]

Community Fund Sets War Drive Goal at $104,361

Civilian Defense, War Relief and Other Agencies To Share in Proceeds of Countywide Campaign.

The 1942-43 goal for national war relief agencies and the five local agencies comprising the Marion Community Foundation, Inc., was set at $104,361.72 in a meeting of the board of trustees of the foundation last night at the Y. M. C. A. Marion city and county will stage a campaign for that amount Oct. 22 to 31 inclusive.

The budget includes requests for a number of foreign relief agencies and four countywide wartime projects, Civilian defense, the canteen service and the proposed recreation program and the day nursery.

For Civilian Defense

Upon the authorization of the budget committee the trustees approved the amount of $25,000 for civilian defense for the city and county of Marion, of which $15,650 is to be raised in Marion city and township and the remainder in the county.

Requests for $5,000 for a proposed recreation program and $2,500 for a proposed day nursery, both of which would be countywide in scope, were approved by the board on the condition that the projects be set up and function according to the approval of the board of trustees.

J. E. Oliphant, president of the foundation stated that an allotment committee would be named in the near future to allocate the budget to the city and county.

The board approved the following:

War Relief—American Social Hygiene $105.15; British War Relief $2,230.48; Dutch, Queen Wilhelmina fund $139.32; Greek War Relief (six months) $1,011.84; National Board, Y. M. C. Board Member Named

Ellis Oller, financial secretary of the CIO citywide organization, was named on the board of trustees to fill the unexpired term of E. A. Langwish who has left the city.

The rural areas of the county, as was planned early in the year, will participate in the war relief and the canteen service, day nursery and recreation financial campaign. Residents of the city will be asked to contribute to these agencies, together with the Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Girl Reserves, the five agencies which comprise the foundation.

One Drive Scheduled

In keeping with plans made early in the year members of the Marion Community Foundation, Inc., will conduct the combined drive, and only one drive will be staged to provide funds for all agencies, both national and local.

A meeting of the executive committee of all organizations and industries in the city and county will be called in the near future by Robert E. White, who will serve as campaign chairman this year.

J. C. Woods is chairman of the budget committee and serving with him is M. L. McDaniel, E. E. Holt, Ed. C. Watters and Harry L. Bowler.

DEFEAT OF GERMANY BY AIR POSSIBLE

Gen. Eaker Declares Sufficient Force Now Assembling.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 22—The conviction that it is possible to destroy Germany from the air is expressed by Brig. Gen. Ora C. Eaker, chief of the AEF bomber command, and he holds that the necessary forces "will be rapidly assembled."

General Eaker, who was nominated for promotion to a major generalcy by President Roosevelt yesterday, declared in an interview published by the London Daily Mail that the enemy would fall before a sufficiently powerful series of vertical assaults.

"By destroying his munitions plants and communications you can bring his armies to a halt," he said.

"By destroying his shipyards you can make it impossible for him to build submarines."

The general said "there is hardly a center of Germany" which [illegible] bombers would not reach within the next few months.

"It should not be assumed that [illegible] can be accomplished by high level [illegible]," he said. "The United States army air forces will bomb [illegible] and in any way that [illegible] is most suitable."

He declared there were enough [illegible] in the British Isles now [illegible] building to accommodate [illegible] air forces needed for the [illegible] of Germany.

PRESS HIGHER PARITY FIGHT

Farm Bloc Keeps Up Battle To Inject Higher Rate Into Price Bill.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—A resurgent farm bloc fought a nip and tuck battle with administration forces today to inject a new and higher basis for agricultural parity prices into the anti-inflation bill.

Although Democratic Leader Barkley (Kentucky) and others remained confident they could defeat a proposed upward revision of 4.3 per cent, the senate was reported so evenly divided on the parity question that a handful of votes might decide the issue.

"It looks all right," Barkley told reporters before the senate began its second day of debate on the measure. The house, a day behind, arranged for general discussion today with amendments coming up for a vote tomorrow.

Price Equalizer

Parity is a price standard which, when reached, is calculated to equalize the return the farmer receives for what he sells with the prices of the things he buys. In the past, it has been used as the basis for making government loans and as a goal for a fair return to the farmer.

It has assumed paramount importance now because, under terms of the pending bill, it would become the lowest point at which price ceilings could be placed on farm products by President Roosevelt in carrying out the prospective congressional directive to stabilize prices, wages and salaries.

Despite the President's asser-

BRITISH 19 MILES FROM TANANARIVE

Strong French Resistance Reported Near Capital.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 22—British forces driving toward Tananarive from the northwest have met strong French resistance 19 miles from the Madagascar capital and are still engaged in battle, a Madagascar broadcast reported today.

The broadcast, reported by Reuters from Port Louis on the island of Mauritius, indicated that the British had closed in half the distance to the capital from their last reported position yesterday. At that time a Tananarive broadcast said the column was 37 miles away.

"The British column advancing on the capital from Majunga met strong resistance yesterday afternoon 19 miles from the capital, and fighting has continued," the new broadcast said.

It reported that British planes made several attacks on a rail line from Tananarive to Antsirabe, 75 miles south of the capital.

STREET FIGHTS GAIN IN FURY IN FIFTH DAY

Fierce Battle Never Stops, Reports from Front to Moscow Declare.

By The Associated Press

Battling at bayonet-point in the narrow streets and rubble-strewn squares, the defenders of Stalingrad held the Germans at bay today for the fifth consecutive day.

Red Star reported street fighting of ever greater intensity and declared that in some cases Germans held one story of a building while the Russians fought back from another.

And even as the battle-grimed defenders held on into the 29th day of siege and the 16th month of Russia's war, the army newspaper reported that the Germans were using relays of transport planes in their rush to replace losses and reinforce their assault.

Red army infantry, artillery and mortar crews, carrying the no-retreat defense of Stalingrad into its 29th day, slew 400 Germans, destroyed 13 tanks, 48 supply trucks, two armored cars and two artillery batteries and silenced other guns and mortars, the Soviet information bureau said.

It indicated that these represented but a few of the scores of engagements for possession of the battered Volga river industrial city over which the Red flag still flies.

German field headquarters asserted Nazi shock troops had captured additional strongly fortified blocks of houses after close-quarter fighting.

Dispatches to the German newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung admitted that "the fall of Stalingrad and therewith the final breaking up of the Russian front, has been delayed," but asserted that "it has not been put off until winter."

Fresh Nazi troops were reported moving into action to replace the invaders' terrific losses, and advices reaching Ankara, Turkey, described large new movements of Rumanian troops enroute to the Soviet front.

Fighting Never Stops

"Attacks don't halt," it said. "Hand-to-hand clashes are going on in the squares, on street crossings and in houses."

(The reference to "the square" was not expanded, but it would indicate the Germans were challenging the Russians close to it, if not at the heart of Stalingrad.)

Five German tanks were set afire or disabled by the defenders of Soviet-fortified positions in the Mozdok area of the central Caucasus, the information bureau said, but "in another sector the Hitlerites, at a cost of heavy losses, captured a height and a populated place."

Russians are credited with the initiative on the northwestern front. The communique said they pressed back the Germans in fighting for a town and repulsed counter-attacks.

"More than 300 enemy dead were left on the battlefield," it reported. "We captured six mortars and several machineguns and took a number of prisoners."

Guerrillas Take Toll

White Russian guerrillas were credited with slaying of 361 Germans and destruction of 33 railway cars, 27 ammunition trucks and about two miles of railway track in a week's fighting.

Izvestia stressed a report that German commanders had moved more troops to the Stalingrad area for a new assault intended to overwhelm the garrison. Dispatches repeatedly said the Red army was preparing a deadly mortar fire upon the invaders of the city's approaches, but made no mention of the Russians' prized big guns.

Military leaders in Moscow expressed belief that heavy Russian batteries were firing into the Germans from the east bank of the Volga as well as from positions in and around Stalingrad.

Captives substantiated reports of large German casualties. A prisoner from a German railway battalion said his group, thrown

PREDICTS NEW JAP DRIVE ON SOLOMONS

Knox Says Enemy Will Try To Retake Territory.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—Secretary of the Navy Knox declared today it was a safe and sound assumption that the Japanese would make major new attempts to reconquer the Solomon Islands.

Knox was asked at a press conference about repeated reports that the Japanese would throw heavy naval and other forces into new efforts to drive the marines out of the islands.

Saying that prediction of such action constituted "a safe and sound assumption," Knox declared that "we operate on that basis." He added: "To do otherwise would be foolish overconfidence."

The secretary had just returned from the American Legion convention in Kansas City. He declared he was "tremendously inspired over the action they took there."

Japs Renew Air Attack on Port Moresby

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Sept. 22 — In their first attack of any strength of allied positions in New Guinea in two weeks, 27 Japanese bombers, escorted by ten fighter planes, dropped bombs in scrub bush 32 miles northwest of Port Moresby yesterday, but caused neither damage nor casualties, a communique said today.

The jungle battleground where allied troops have stalled the Japanese drive on Port Moresby is about 32 miles northeast of that allied base, on the southern side of the Owen Stanley range, but a spokesman said the attack had no direct bearing on the fighting there and the situation was unchanged.

in Marion county, especially in the rural areas.

Hauling the scrap metal to junkyards is a phase of the campaign that officials are centering on today since scouring the hundreds of miles of roads in the county will be a big job even after scrap piles have been formed at schools and in barnyards. Officials hoped to be able to announce details of the hauling arrangements soon.

It's People's Problem

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—The war production board put it up flatly to the people today:

Unless they do an "exceptional job" on harvesting iron and steel scrap this fall, the country's blast furnaces will have to cut down on steel output this winter.

Deputy Director Paul C. Cabot of WPB's conservation division said that there was now on hand only about half of the 7,000,000 tons of scrap which must be available to furnaces by the year's end to tide steel makers over the winter months when collections normally fall off.

Cabot predicted the 3,500,000-ton shortage could be filled by the people, under the leadership of newspapers and local salvage committees "if there is immediate intensification of scrap collection programs."

Whether Red City Falls, Now Isn't of Great Concern

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Last Thursday, when things were looking black for the Russians in the never-ending crisis of the battle for Stalingrad, a high ranking soldier told me that despite the gravity of the position he still believed the Reds would hold the city.

That was a declaration calling for great faith. Field Marshall Von Bock was pouring his men into the sacrificial fire with that utter disregard for life which characterizes Prussian militarism. The Germans had battered their way forward so far in places that their blood was spilling into the waters of the Volga.

My military friend was an optimist. Still as this is being written, almost a week later, the unachievable Reds continue to hold and counterattack in the face of superior numbers.

Maybe my friend is not only an optimist but a major prophet. However, I have the notion he would agree that so far as the siege of Stalingrad is concerned, it's still in a state of flux.

Yet in its broadest sense, the battle of Stalingrad already is finished. The question of who succeeds in hanging onto the shattered remains of the city isn't a matter of major importance, for the Germans already have done their damnedest in knocking out this strategic base.

What counts is that Hitler's program for conquest of the Caucasus has been greviously delayed. And of even greater importance is the fact that he has failed in an imperative objective —the shattering of that magnificent Red line.

The Nazi chief had planned—perhaps still plans—to steamroller his way into the oil fields of trans-Caucasia. Daily his prospects of doing that grow less, for the fall rains already are falling to signal the approach of winter. True, war can be waged in the Caucasus in wintertime, but Hitler would seem to face a titanic task in shattering the Red defenses along the Caucasus range before bad weather.

Despite this I don't think we are yet in position to sign off the Hitlerian offensive for the season. We must wait to see what October produces.

KNOX PAYS TRIBUTE TO U. S. NEWSMEN

Calls War Reporters Credit to Profession.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—"The long chances" which war correspondents are taking to get the news fills Secretary of Navy Knox with "a great sense of pride."

Their work, Knox told his press conference today, is very admirable and creditable to the profession.

The tribute was prompted by information that another newsman, Jack Singer of the International News Service, was missing in action. Singer was stationed in the Pacific fleet.

Knox is published of the Chicago Daily News and he related how he had had the experience of having to restrain some of his people. Daily News staffers in London, he said, "want to go on every commando raid."

Asked whether he knew of any tendency on the part of the government to have its own men cover the news directly, eliminating independent reporting, Knox said the only thing he knew of which might give rise to reports of such a trend was what the marines are doing.

He said they were taking some younger newsmen and training them for regular combat duty. After engaging in front line action these men are then qualified to write of their experiences and those of their fellows.

Two Men Face Charges in Juvenile Court

Charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor have been filed against two men now being held in the county jail by Ralph Carhart, attorney for the Marion County Humane society. The girl is being held at the county juvenile detention home. A hearing was scheduled for this afternoon in juvenile court. No charges have been filed against a woman taken into custody with the girl and men Monday morning near Waldo by sheriff's deputies.

MODEL PLANE BUILDING MEETING SET TONIGHT

World War Flier To Instruct Marion Boys.

All boys of Marion interested in airplane model building are invited to a meeting of Boy Scout Troop No. 7 at First Reformed church tonight at 7:30, Rudolph Schultz, Scoutmaster of Troop 7 announced.

Starting the program of instruction, which will be carried out during the school year at regular meetings, Robert Candlish, a World War I flier and owner of his own plane, will give details of the aeronautic craft and talk on air-scouting. Mr. Candlish is an executive of the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

The program is a merit badge senior scouting project sponsored by the national Scout organization and will be of special interest to boys 15 and over, but younger boys can participate in making plane models and win minor Scout recognition. The training for the older boys will be more intensive with the goal of preparing them to enter aviation schools on completion of their high school courses.

tion that he was "unalterably opposed" to any change in the basis of computing parity. Senators Hatch (D-NM) and Thomas (D-Okla) submitted amendments which would include farm labor costs for the first time in computing parity.

This would boost the parity base 4.6 per cent on the average, raising the lowest point of farm price ceilings under the new bill a like amount.

Farm state senators indicated dissatisfaction, meanwhile, with a provision approved by the banking committee which would permit the President to take into account increased labor costs in adjusting the maximum price ceilings on agricultural commodities.

Two Objections Heard

The senate heard opposition expressed yesterday by Senators Johnson (R-Calif) and O'Daniel (D-Texas) to the proposed broad grant of powers to the President but proceeded methodically to adopt banking committee amendments on virtually unanimous voice votes.

One amendment thus tentatively approved would authorize and direct the President to act on or before Nov. 1 to stabilize prices, wages and salaries so far as practicable on the basis of levels which existed on Sept. 15.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) succeeded in amending another section to make it plain that if subsequent adjustments were made by the President, they must be made not only to correct inequities but because they were necessary to aid in the effective prosecution of the war.

In order to eliminate a possibility that high salaries might be "frozen" at the Sept. 15 levels, the senate adopted an amendment by Senator Overton (D-La) permitting employers to reduce salaries of $5,000 a year or more, if they chose, without first obtaining the President's consent.

Minneapolis Scrap Sleuth Hunts Metal and Finds It

WPB Office Doesn't Wait for Public To Bring Material in, Workers Go After It.

By SIGRID ARNE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 21 — (By Wireless) — It's really quite a jaunt to walk into the Minneapolis WPB offices. They forget "business as usual" some time ago. The WPB clamor from Washington makes only faint echoes here. The gents here are too busy working.

Right now they're doing an ingenious and surprising job of finding scrap metal where nobody thought scrap metal existed. The drive is spark-plugged by slim, quick-thinking Norman Olson who runs a division called "special projects."

Other men worry about coaxing scrap from house-wives, scrap from factories, scrap from "auto graveyards." Olson hunts metal which people have forgotten, metal tied up by politics, law, or finance.

But the scrap-hunting job is entering a phase now on a national scale more intensive than anything that has preceded it.

American newspapers are going all-out in the scrap drive. Donald M. Nelson, WPB chief, asked the nation's publishers earlier this month to concentrate on the scrap drive for the three weeks from next Monday till Oct. 17.

The publishers have planned in various ways to boost the collection in their territory by methods which may include prizes for counties and regions doing the best job.

Scrap Sleuth

Olson's found one source that's really a laugh. But it may mean millions of tons of scrap from the four states supervised from Minneapolis, Iowa, the two Dakotas, and Minnesota.

It started when Olson dropped in on a small town mayor.

"Scrap?" said the gent. "Ours is all collected. Fine job. None left."

Olso wandered out onto the street and found an old-timer. "Where'd you used to dump old autos?"

"Dump? M-m. Back of the gannery. Covered it with dirt years ago. Looks right nice."

Olson tramped out there, dug around, brought out a rusted fender, and grinned. Now two men with a bull-dozer have chewed up the field, dug through 10 feet of earth, and found 500 tons of scrap metal. At $10 a ton they made a neat profit.

That started similar hunts over the four states. Some cities finance their own hunts. Some contract and take a percentage. Olson says now it's not so hard to find metal. He gets so many letters from just little people.

Old Bridges Come Down

Another good story concerns an old bridge. It is too weak for trucks. Only pedestrians use it. Olson found that real estate interests wanted to keep that bridge for selfish reasons.

He went back to the council and reminded them that WPB can requisition. And the requisition process doesn't make nice reading. The council was due to meet the next day. That night Olson sent each member a special delivery letter, repeating the conversation. The council voted unanimously to turn over the decrepit bridge to the war.

That story grape-vined to other city councils, and now six bridges are coming down in southern Minnesota. Old bridges.

Olson ran into some surprising situations. City officials sneaked in to him to say, "You'll have to requisition in our town. The council can't vote your way. We still have a strong proisolationist element." How do you like that?

In Iowa, a wholesale face-lifting is going on. That state seems to have given up street cars in a big way. The tracks stayed because it cost too much to take them up. Now, in 28 Iowa towns the tracks are coming up: mostly with WPA labor.

Duluth had 7,000 tons of car tracks when the drive started. She's peeled up half of it, and is still peeling.

Forgotten Railroads

The railroads are a joy and a delight. In these big states they have thousands of miles of old spur lines, forgotten in the wilds. Lines which ran into mines, now dead; into lumber districts, now abandoned. The companies have wanted to take up the lines, but often the state railway commission refused permission because "some day" the districts might revive.

Now Olson just goes over the state commissions to the I. C. C. which issues permission to abandon lines, and the track is coming up.

The old lines have been a big help to the army which, right now, is scratching around for 41,000,000 feet of steel rails to relay into army camps. This section alone, under Olson's requisitions, has produced 1,000 miles of rail. The Duluth, Mesabi and Iron Range railroad, alone, turned over 15 carloads of good rail.

But there's the reverse, too. There's a Toonerville owned by a man who's sure it will be a gold mine some day. Right now the line runs only a freight car or two, once or twice a week over the tracks. It just isn't in the cards for the line to revive, but it has 1,500 tons of iron rail and 800 tons of copper. Olson will requisition the road.

Gold Mines Produce Steel

In the famous Black Hills of South Dakota, abandoned gold mines are being opened for the tons of old equipment left there: track, hoists, engines. There's a shortage of water pipe right now. It's needed in army camps, and in cities mushrooming with war plants. Olson was able to help in one such jam because he knew about a Minneapolis city which had 1,200 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe in a storehouse.

WPB was notified that a new army camp in Oklahoma was finished, all but the water-pipe. The men were due to arrive in three days. Olson requisitioned this stored pipe, rushed it onto freight cars, and it arrived at the camp just two days after the men.

Olson is eyeing other sources of metal that will certainly be a surprise to most of us.

If the steel shortage gets really serious, he points out that the street signs, now made of metal, could be taken down and wooden ones substituted. He points out that most cities now don't illuminate all their street lights. The darkened posts are good metal. And the man-hole covers. Maybe, says Olson, we could take every other one, and seal up the holes.

That's what I mean about this Minneapolis WPB office. They forgot "business as usual" some time ago.

TWO U. S. SHIPS SUNK IN CONVOY TO MALTA

British Aircraft Carrier Eagle Lost in Same Battle.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—The navy announced today that two United States merchant vessels were lost in the Mediterranean sea early in August on a Malta-bound convoy at the same time that the British aircraft carrier Eagle is sunk.

One of the American vessels was torpedoed and sank after a motor torpedo boat and seaplane axis air and sea craft had battered the big convoy almost constantly for three days.

The Eagle, loss of which was announced in London, had also had been sunk the second day.

The other American merchantman was scuttled by the crew to prevent its falling into enemy hands after it had been torpedoed, presumably by a submarine.

Killed in the first ship were four members of the gun crew who were shot by machine guns when the axis torpedo boat roared in to the attack. There was no loss of life aboard the second vessel, the total complement of which was composed of 48 crew members and 43 passengers. Total complement of the first vessel was 107.

V. F. W. Post Signs Second Marionite in World War II

Albert Wilkinson, of the U. S. navy, who has seen Pacific war action on submarine duty, has been enrolled in Marion Post No. 3313, Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was announced today as preparations were under way for the forty-third anniversary meeting Wednesday night at the V. F. W. hall.

Wilkinson left Saturday night for the west coast after a visit with his mother, Mrs. Lillian Ciola of 406 Thompson street. His membership was announced by the post commander, N. V. Foreman, who also enrolled Jack Dunford, first Marion man to return from active service.

According to Mr. Foreman, Wilkinson, because of censorship, was unable to say much about his experiences. "I hope the story will be available to the newspapers soon for it will equal the Yorktown for experience," Mr. Foreman said.

Mr. Foreman, commended by the district commander for the two memberships, was asked to have the Marion post colors at a district meeting in Bellefontaine next Sunday.

The following appointments by the department commander, Emerson Wolff of Akron, have been received here:

LeRoy Miller, department historian; Harry G. Baker, chairman of resolutions committee; Paul Reynolds, department deputy chief of staff; Carl Kay, district guard; Mr. Foreman, department deputy inspector for District 2.

Final plans for the meeting in Bellefontaine will be made at the meeting Wednesday night.

Ransom demands were sent to the family, intermediaries named to negotiate with the kidnapers and then Luer was released July 16 near Collinsville. Members of the family said not a cent ransom was paid.

Five men and a woman were convicted of the kidnaping and sentenced to prison in the fall of 1933.

Canada Bars Dreiser from Public Statements

Action Follows Anti-British Remarks in Toronto.

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, Sept. 22—Theodore Dreiser has been barred from making public statements of speeches in Canada on a charge that he expressed anti-British views in an interview published yesterday by the Toronto Evening Telegram.

Attorney General Gordon Conant of Ontario quoted from the Telegram's interview with the 71-year-old Indiana-born writer and lecturer as follows:

"I would rather see the Germans in England than those damn aristocratic horse-riding snobs there now. The English have done nothing in this war thus far except borrow money, planes and men from the United States. They stay at home and do nothing. They are lousy."

Justice Minister St. Laurent issued the ban, a spokesman for the justice department announced, under defense of Canada regulations.

Dreiser had been scheduled to speak at the Eaton auditorium in Toronto tonight on "Democracy on the Offensive."

He was not available in Toronto for comment.

A watch has been invented in Switzerland that, it is asserted, can perform all sorts of computations based on logarithms.

Impatient Passenger Tries To Hurry Train

Sheriff's deputies were called to Harvey Station four miles north of here on the Pennsylvania railroad when employes reported a man tampering with a switch near which a train had stopped about 4 a. m. today. The man, about 50 years old, and identified from papers as a resident of the veterans hospital at Chillicothe, told the officers he had been riding on the train and thought it had stopped there long enough, so he was going to change the signals and have it move on. He was brought to Marion by Deputies Roy Retterer and Ross J. McGinniss, and is being held at the county jail. Authorities from the hospital are expected to come after him today.

KAISER STARTS HIRING 20,000 FOR SHIPYARDS

Calls on New York To Furnish Manpower.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Hiring of 20,000 New York workmen for the Portland, Ore., shipyards of Henry J. Kaiser began today with Kaiser's agents expecting to send the first 600 west on a special train Thursday.

Thomas Murphy, Kaiser recruiting chief, said 50,000 men were being sought from New York, Indiana, Illinois and Texas. He added that if New York's unemployment problem promoted a lively response, perhaps the entire 50,000 would be taken from here.

No previous knowledge of shipbuilding is required, agents said. Clerks and white collar workers will be welcome and will be trained as journeymen at the shipyards.

Murphy said no 1-A men would be accepted and there would be no "pirating" of other war industries.

Women able to weld will be hired, he said.

"But we may be back in New York later for 50,000 women for all lines," Murphy remarked.

Izvestia said the Germans rounded up farmers, women and children at one place and drove them ahead of their shock troops, but Soviet automatic riflemen maneuvered between them and saved the civilians.

Invasion divisions of Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock strove desperately to extend their lodgments within the streets of Stalingrad.

(The Berlin radio, as if to shift emphasis from the Stalingrad front, declared Russian forces had been encircled in the central front after breaking through German positions at two points south of Rzhev.

(Bitter fighting in various sectors of the Soviet front was attended by a report in the Stockholm newspaper Arbetaren that German troops in Norway had been regrouped and it was believed large contingents were being sent to Russia.

(A Vichy radio broadcast declared that German troops had crossed the Volga river five days ago, but did not report the site of such a crossing. The Germans asserted last week that they had reached the stream both north and south of Stalingrad.)

... clauses remain bind... ing for the term of the lease except those in conflict with the regulation such as rent and vacate clauses.

Q. If the lease calls for a lower rent than that charged on the maximum-rent date, can the landlord raise the rent to the ceiling?

A. No, in such a case the rent specified in the lease is binding. The presumption is that since the landlord was willing to rent his property at the figure agreed upon, and that such a rental was agreeable to him for the period of time covered in the lease, then there is no reason why he should expect a higher rent in the event the rental ceiling set was higher. Federal rent control places a ceiling on rents, not a floor.

Q. When a lease expires, need a tenant sign a renewal?

A. If the tenant had a written lease and wished to remain in the quarters, he must at the request of the landlord sign a renewal of the lease for the period in his expiring lease or for one year, whichever is shorter, containing the same terms and conditions as the expiring lease, except that it cannot call for a rent higher than the maximum rent.

Q. Is there any provision for raising or lowering the maximum rent at the expiration of a lease which, because of special circumstance, called for a rent on the maximum-rent date that was substantially out of line with the rents prevailing in the area?

A. Yes, either the landlord or the tenant may ask the rent director to adjust the maximum rent in a situation of this sort.

Q. A long-term lease signed several years ago and reflecting a different set of economic and rental conditions called for a rent below that charged for comparable dwelling units in the neighborhood on the maximum-rent date. Is the landlord bound by that figure in future rentings of his property?

A. No, at the expiration of the lease the landlord may petition for an adjustment in the maximum rent. However, no adjustment will be permitted while the lease is in effect.

Broad powers for the control and restraint of evictions were incorporated in the emergency price control act. Specifically, the act states: "It shall be unlawful for any person to remove or attempt to remove from any defense-area housing accommodations the tenant or occupant thereof . . . because such tenant or occupant has taken, or proposed to take, action authorized or required by the act or any regulation, order or requirement thereunder." The act also states: ". . . the administator may, by regulation or order, regulate or prohibit . . . renting or leasing practices (including practices relating to recovery of the possession) . . . likely to result in rent increases . . . inconsistent with the purposes of this act."

Q. If a tenant doesn't have a written lease, do the same restrictions against eviction hold?

A. Yes, an agreement to rent does not have to be in written form for a tenant to enjoy all the benefits and protection of federal rent control.

Q. If a tenant does have a lease, can he be evicted merely because his lease has expired?

A. No, the tenant can continue occupying the quarters as long as he continues to pay his rent. However, if the landlord wants him to, he must renew the lease at the same rent and for the period of his expiring lease or for one year, whichever is shorter.

Q. Are there any conditions under which a landlord can regain possession of his property by evicting the tenant?

A. Yes, there are various circumstances whereby a tenant can be evicted. Among them are:

(1) failure to pay his legal rent;

(2) violation of a substantial obligation of his rental agreement, such as maintaining a fire hazard on the premises, or renting the house for dwelling purposes and then using it for a store,

(3) committing a nuisance or using the dwelling unit for immoral or illegal purposes;

(4) when the landlord, in good faith, wants to get his house or dwelling unit back for his own occupancy;

(5) when the landlord wants to get the property back for the purpose of selling it to another person who has agreed in writing to buy it for his own occupancy;

(6) when the landlord wants to get his property back for extensive remodeling or alteration which cannot be done while the tenant is occupying the property.

Q. Are there other circumstances under which a tenant can be evicted?

A. Yes. But in every case except for non-payment of the legal rent, the landlord must notify the rent director of his proposed action and the grounds for it.

GRAIN TRADE FEARS FUTURE

See Private Wheat Operations Paralyzed by Government Control.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 22—Fear was expressed by grain men today that the nation's private wheat trade eventually may be paralyzed by federal price control.

They said that if the pending anti-inflation legislation and regulations set up under it to control farm prices are not carefully prepared to allow for the many peculiarities of grain marketing, the private trade may be strait-jacketed. Then complete federal operation of a vast and complex business might become necessary.

Difficulties associated with adoption of price restrictions for cereals resulted, they said, principally because grains differ widely in value.

Under pending legislation, the range of prices of wheat technically would be extremely narrow. Farm parity price is around $1.34 a bushel, which would be the ceiling. Government loan rates would be 90 per cent, or about $1.21. The actual price of wheat on the farm now is well below either figure and would not necessarily rise to the loan rate, grain men said.

The Uhlmann Grain Co. in a statement pointed out that "under this narrow spread a farmer who has obtained a loan and stored wheat off the farm for 7 or 8 months would hardly be able to pay charges that accumulate during this period even though he might sell his wheat at the ceiling."

As a result, the wheat probably would be turned over to the government in default of loans. Instead of being returned to the commercial trade. Estimates were that by spring 800,000,000 bushels, half of the nation's supply, may be involved either as collateral on loans or in outright government ownership. Although at times last season, wheat prices rose more than a dime over loan rates, about two-thirds of the amount under loan was turned over to the government.

"Of course, the law of regulations promulgated under it may make allowance for these changes," said Jack Benjamin, an Uhlmann executive, "but it is vitally necessary that this be done."

Benjamin also explained that on the basis of present government loans very little premium was allowed for high grade wheat yet the ceiling for this grain may be the same as that for lower grade grain.

"Unfortunately, the public does not seem to realize the purposes of the organized grain trade. Few know, for example, that through operation of futures exchanges, risks involved in the marketing are greatly minimized, which benefits both producer and consumer."

Benjamin said the price of wheat now could not be considered anywhere near an "inflation basis" since it is well below the level the government itself seeks to maintain.

SECURITY, LIQUOR TAXES BOOST TOTAL

Internal Revenue Income 681 Millions in August.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—Social security, liquor and income levies accounted for about two-thirds of the $681,667,158.10 tax bill collected by the internal revenue bureau during August, the treasury department reported today.

The total figure represented a flat increase of $207,298,183.37 over the collections for August 1941.

Social security's $177,282,296.60 top total represented a gain of $38,786,433.18 over the 1941 figure, while liquor levies jumped $37,038,052.78 to a $122,109,346.95 total.

The income tax take of $111,545,319 showed the biggest increase of the three levies over the previous August—more than doubling the 1941 figure. Cigaret taxes continued to yield heavily, bringing in some ten million dollars more than in August last year.

Leading the new war levies which had no figure to report a year ago was the automobile use tax. Still little pure research on [illegible] ...ected with $13,000,000 of new revenue for the month.

At the same time, autos, trucks, motorcycles and various domestic appliances continued to show the effects of rationing in sharp tax decreases, as did the gasoline tax which dropped nearly $10,000,000 under the 1941 figure.

LABOR CHARGES FILED

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Sept. 22—Based on charges filed by affiliates of the CIO and AFL, a national labor relations board complaint today accused the Wright Aeronautical Corp. of suburban Lockland of unfair labor practices. The complaint contends the company warned workers not to join either the CIO-United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Workers of America or the AFL-International Association of Machinists.

Why God Permits War!

Why does God permit war? Why does He permit cruelty, insanity, starvation, sickness and death?

Ten years ago, in Forbidden Tibet, behind the highest mountains in the world, a young Englishman named Edwin J. Dingle found the answers to these questions. A great mystic opened his eyes. A great change came over him. He realized the strange Power that Knowledge gives.

That Power, he says, can transform the life of anyone. Questions whatever they are, can be answered. The problems of health, death, poverty and wrong, can be solved.

In his own case, he was brought back to splendid health. He acquired wealth, too, as well as world-wide professional recognition. Thirty years ago, he was told as a man could be and live. Once his coffin was bought. Years of almost continuous tropical fevers ravaged bones, near blindness, privation and danger had made a human wreck of him, physically and mentally.

He was about to be sent back to England to die, when a strange message came—"They are waiting for you in Tibet." He went to tell the whole world what he learned there, under the guidance of the greatest mystic he ever encountered during his twenty-one years in the Far East. He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which have come to him.

Within ten years, he was able to retire to this country with a fortune. He had been honored by fellowships in the World's leading geographical societies, for his work as a geographer. And today, 30 years later, he is still so athletic, capable of so much work, so young in appearance, it is hard to believe he has lived so long.

As a first step in their progress toward the Power that Knowledge gives, Mr. Dingle wants to send to readers of this notice a 9,000-word treatise. It is free. For your copy, send your name and address to the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. B91, Los Angeles, Calif. Write promptly.—Adv.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

In the square of a little village not far from here I came on the prettiest flower garden you ever saw.

It was a lot of flowers all mixed up—hundreds of different kinds, I guess. So I asked a passerby if he could tell me about it.

"Well," he says, "in this town whenever anybody plants a flower garden and has any seeds left, they scatter them over this plot."

Then he leans over and pulls out a couple of weeds. "We all have to help pull out the weeds too," he tells me. "That way the village has a flower garden to be proud of."

That's about as pretty an illustration of co-operation as I ever come across. But there's plenty of examples of co-operation and civic spirit these days.

We were talking just yesterday about how the brewers and the beer distributors are working together and co-operating with law enforcement authorities.

You see a lot of friendship and fine old customs have grown up around beer. But the weeds—well—they've got to be pulled out, too.

Everybody has to lend a hand. And the brewing industry is just sensible enough to recognize that . . . But what's more—they're doing something about it.

The brewers don't want their beer sold in the wrong kind of places, and so they've teamed up with the authorities in a self-regulation program to make careless beer retailers "clean up or close up," as they say.

From what I read, the plan is working out mighty successful in a number of states, and is spreadin' out into others.

From where I sit, it looks like a fine idea . . . a mighty practical example of how honest co-operation works out to the benefit of everyone—the brewers, the beer retailers, and us plain citizens that like our gardens and our pleasures—with the weeds kept out.

Recruited by Captain Lawther, the men were selected according to their technical ability and their civilian occupation.

"If you want a horse shod or a watch fixed just bring it to the 258th," the paper stated. "They are men . . . outstanding in every field of the highly technical qualities of a medium maintenance company."

Captain Lawther, head of Paul Lawther Motors on West Center street, was called to service from the reserve officers.

One of the men of the 258th is Joe Bingham of Marion, a former marine, who has been promoted to corporal.

Dr. T. C. Holy Named O. S. U. Research Head

Surgical Dressing Work To Be Started Wednesday

First Work Session To Be Held at St. Mary Community Center Tomorrow Morning.

Women of Marion who have volunteered to make surgical dressings for the army will begin their work Wednesday at 9 a. m. in the St. Mary community house at North Prospect and George streets.

The task of supplying a minimum of 20,000 dressings a month will be carried on by the Marion County Red Cross chapter, under the direction of Mrs. Warren Sawyer, chairman, and Mrs. Richard Lawson, co-chairman.

Every woman in the city and county who can give three hours or more a week to the making of dressings, today was urgently asked to register at the Red Cross office on the second floor of the Y.M.C.A. building on South State street.

May Work Nights, Too

Those in charge hope there will be enough volunteers among women employed in the daytime that arrangements can be made to keep the community house open at night.

Until the night work hours are set, the schedule will be 9 a. m. to 12 noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. daily through Saturday.

Last class for the 20 volunteer supervisors was conducted last night by Mrs. Sawyer.

Today the volunteers began getting the community house ready for the work which it has been donated by Rev. Father William J. Spickerman for as long as it is needed.

Six tables were contributed by Father Spickerman and more were "borrowed" by the women.

The only equipment now badly needed at present is a small desk. Mrs. Sawyer said yesterday. Anyone who has a small business type desk to contribute has been asked to call her at 7267. Arrangements will be made for its transportation to the community house.

"Women must understand that this isn't a social gathering or a jolly good time," Mrs. Sawyer said yesterday. "It will be monotonous to sit for three hours and make the dressings, but after all it is one way every woman who has a husband, brother, or son in service can work to see that the medical corps has the supplies it needs if he should be wounded."

She expressed the hope that clubs, church groups, patriotic organizations and other women's groups now starting their fall and winter season will volunteer to give at least one meeting a month to working at the community house.

JUNK RALLY OPENS DELAWARE CO. FAIR

Grand Circuit Races, Night Shows on Program.

DELAWARE, O., Sept. 22—The 1942 Delaware county fair, featuring the only Grand Circuit harness racing in Ohio, got underway today with a "junk rally" sponsored by the Delaware county salvage committee and farm implement dealers of the county.

Included in the rally were a horseshoe pitching contest at 9 a. m. at the fairgrounds, free collection of all scrap metal by implement dealers and an auction of the collection to Delaware junk dealers this afternoon.

Entry fee for the horseshoe pitching contest was six pairs of horseshoes which the entrant had discarded. Prizes were posted by the fair board and the horseshoes went on the scrap heap.

Judging in all departments started this morning.

Four days of Grand Circuit racing started this afternoon. First of the night entertainment programs will be the show by the Boone County Jamboree tonight. Wednesday and Thursday nights the extravaganza, "Let Freedom Swing," will be staged and Friday night the Renfro Valley Barn Dance troup will provide the show.

Today also was designated as "Democratic Day" on the grounds. John McSweeney, Democratic candidate for governor was scheduled to speak at 2:30 p. m.

Wednesday will be "Republican Day".

Woman Recovers from Amnesia To Find She's Married

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 22 — The widow of a Binghamton, N. Y., editor suffering from amnesia for almost a year, recovered her memory yesterday to find herself married to a man she can't remember.

The mixup came to light when Mrs. Glory Weller Miller, 25, awoke in the unfamiliar surroundings of a motor hotel. Bewildered and not certain of her identity, she appealed to the hotel manager for assistance. He took her to the police station.

There police speedily identified her through a picture supplied by her husband, Henry Miller, a commercial photographer who had reported her missing.

But Miller was a stranger to his wife. She had no recollection of meeting him, of their marriage in Las Vegas, Nev., May 1, or of her life with him since.

The shock which led to her plight occurred Nov. 4, 1941, she said, when she entered her home in Atascadero, Calif., and found her first husband, H. Pierre Weller, 50, dead. That was her last remembrance until her recovery in the motor hotel. She didn't know the nation was at war; she had no recollection of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

"I don't know what to do," she told interviewers. "I can't stay with someone I don't know. I realize all the evidence indicates I was married to Mr. Miller, but I don't know him. I can't remember even meeting him."

Mrs. Miller consulted her diary in an effort to fill the gap in her life, and found this entry, apparently, to Weller, her first husband:

"Dearest Pierce: Up at 5:30, dressed in new wedding clothes. Off at Las Vegas . . . breakfast. Henry got me a message. Marriage license. Justice of the peace . . . took pictures. Boarded train."

SURGERY PATIENT

Mrs. Glen James of 268 Lafayette street is in City hospital for surgical treatment.

Can You Win Freedom From Constipation?

Too many folks go on suffering from constipation when there's no need in the world for them to do so! Why? Simply because one of the commonest causes of constipation is lack of "bulk food" in the diet. In such cases, cathartics and purges can give only temporary relief!

If this is your trouble, you can expect lasting relief from constipation — simply by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This crisp, delicious cereal supplies the "bulk" you may need—gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it. Start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today and drink plenty of water. See what a wonderful difference it makes when you correct the cause instead of trying to "remedy" the result! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

Today, more and more travelers are in uniform . . . going to keep a date that will decide the destiny of all of us—and of our children's children. Yes, that fellow in khaki or blue has the right of way on American railroads.

Today, the railroads—handling huge military travel, increased civilian travel and vastly greater freight traffic—have a nation's size job on their hands. Today, we too are at war! As you are. You fight, perhaps, by buying War Bonds, salvaging vital war materials, working harder. If you have to travel, you can make still another patriotic contribution to victory . . . by patiently putting up with any inconvenience caused by our giving first call to Uncle Sam.

YOU CAN HELP YOUR COUNTRY —AND YOURSELF

Chesapeake and Ohio, like other railroads, wants to give civilian travelers the best possible service, too. You'll help us serve you—and America—if you'll do these simple things. Plan mid-week rather than week-end trips. Make your plans and reservations well in advance. Accept available accommodations, even if they're not what you want. Cancel reservations promptly if you can't use them. Buy round-trip tickets. Travel with little baggage. Arrive at stations before train time. Japan Will Fight to the Finish

JOSEPH C. GREW, U. S. ambassador who sat on the lid of the explosion against militarism in Japan, supports one established notion about the war and recommends another one. He agrees that Germany probably will not fight to the finish but will squirm for peace as soon as victory becomes impossible. But Japan, he explains to his countrymen from the depth of his experience, will fight to the finish. Of the two major Axis enemies, Japan may prove to be the harder to dispose of, therefore.

Former Ambassador Grew is doing everything in his power to keep his countrymen and his government from underestimating Japanese military power, an attitude that led us to the tragic unpreparedness at Pearl Harbor. Since his repatriation he hasn't missed a chance to stress Japanese preparations for conquest not only of China but of the United States, itself. It would be interesting to know what he told his superiors in Washington before war began; the implication of his unofficial remarks now is that at last he is in position to tell his story to the people.

It must be assumed that he speaks with a purpose, either to warn his countrymen, his government or both that Japan should be considered a major threat to the security of the United States—a greater threat than Germany, because the Japanese will not stop short of their own extinction, a characteristic already noted by their opponents.

Swapping Deadlines

INCLUSION of a Nov. 1 deadline for executive action by the senate banking committee in the price and wage stabilization bill being completed for the President's Oct. 1 deadline is perfectly proper.

Mr. Roosevelt began to be concerned publicly about price control almost 14 months ago and sent a ready-made bill to congress for enactment. The bill became law on Jan. 30 this year. In April, the President announced a seven-point program to stop inflation. Two of the points concerned stabilization of farm prices and stabilization of wages. Other points concerned rationing, taxation, wholesale and retail price ceilings, War Bond purchases with surplus income and liquidation of debt.

Except for the price ceilings, fixed in May, the official administration program has been handled softly. Congress has every reason to assume that if the emergency now justifies Mr. Roosevelt in setting a deadline for its action it must also justify a deadline for his responding action. It is the neatest way imaginable of canceling the impression that congress alone is to blame for not stopping the inflationary spiral before it started and that it must be punished for its neglect by working extra hard for the next few weeks.

How Goes It with Petrillo?

FOR AN ordinary citizen of unofficial status James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, is causing a lot of bother with his crackdown on the machinery of music distribution. Elmer Davis, chief of the office of war information, even goes so far as to say it is a deadly blow at national morale, and many other persons are equally excited.

But meanwhile what about the theory that started it all—the theory that more musicians would be employed if the crackdown occurred? That is, after all, the crux of the furor, particularly for Mr. Petrillo's loyal followers. If he guessed wrong and if the hulabaloo hasn't helped members of his union—if it has had the effect on the other hand—of giving their organization a black eye, then Mr. Petrillo doesn't have a leg to stand on. Aside from whatever legal and public complications he may have caused, the musicians' head man must have stuck out his neck a mile with his own people. Are they doing better or worse as the result of his efforts in their behalf?

Interruption

DISCUSSION of what will constitute a proper attitude toward Germans if and when their latest urge to trample down their neighbors can be balked never fails to be lively. There always is at least one person who keeps it lively by holding out for forgiving and forgetting—and backing up his position with doctrinal Christianity.

If this person will pardon an interruption, his position is like the fellow who rode the bicycle through the pasture where the mad bull was kept. He made a habit of doing it, and every day the bull chased him to the fence, arriving a split second behind the rider, who had hit with such impact that he was catapulted into a briar patch on the other side. A friend witnessed this near-fatal experience one day for the first time. "That bull almost caught you," he said excitedly. "Yep," said the bicycle rider, "he almost catches me every day."

If Germany catches its intended victims eventually because they keep giving it another chance by forgiving and forgetting, they'll have no one to blame but themselves. Precaution has nothing to do with Christianity; it's just ordinary common sense.

Wartime Criticism

Review of Laws on Treason, Sedition, Disloyalty.

AMERICANS are beginning to wonder what they may do to assist in the management of the war now for they dare to do without danger of legal complications. A number of trials for treason are under way and others are being considered. Courts and grand juries are studying charges of disloyalty and sedition.

Key to the situation is intent, one of the toughest of all questions to decide. Motives are notoriously difficult to prove. If what a person says in his observations about the way the war is being run springs from nothing but a burning desire to see things run better—if he is not demonstrably interested in promoting dissatisfaction for dissatisfaction's sake—he has nothing to fear, except through misunderstanding.

Treason is the only crime defined in the Constitution. The founding fathers remembered vividly how in England the government had defined criticism of the state as treason, regardless of motive. They determined that no such tyranny should occur under the new government they were creating.

Art. 3, Sec. III, Section III of the Constitution declares that treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort." For further safeguard against unjust conviction, the Constitution provides: "No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court."

Thus, helping a German prisoner of war escape from Canada would be treason. But it clearly would not be treason to condemn the way the government handled some piece of business that turned out badly.

THE sedition section of the espionage act of 1917, now in force, tries to remedy a weakness in the constitutional definition of treason. This section requires that the offense must be "willful," as distinct from unintentional, to be punishable as treason. It is made a criminal offense in time of war willfully to: Spread false statements intended to hinder the war effort or help the enemy—attempt to cause disloyalty or refusal of duty in the armed forces—obstruct recruiting—send through the mails any matter coming under the above three heads, or urge forcible resistance to any federal law.

A newspaper or an individual is held within the law in condemning, for instance, British policy in India, if actuated only by a desire to see that policy changed. It might be something else again in the case of a newspaper or an individual whose central purpose was to detach the United States from Great Britain in the war and, while caring nothing about India, to use the Indian trouble to hinder the Allied war effort.

Similarly, anyone may legally criticize the President to his heart's content, if actuated only by a sincere conviction that the President is a bad war leader, and that the war effort would proceed more efficiently under some one else. On the other hand, it might violate the espionage act to spread untruths, known to be untruths, about the President with the sole purpose of causing dissatisfaction and keeping the country from prosecuting the war.

During the last war the law went much further. By an amendment in 1918 (sometimes called the sedition act) to the espionage act of 1917, it was made a criminal offense during war willfully to hinder the war effort or favor and promote the cause of the enemy—willfully to hinder the sale of government securities, except as bona fide investment advice—willfully to curtail production in order to hinder the war effort—willfully to bring into disrepute the American form of government, the Constitution, the American armed forces and their uniform, or the American flag.

IN 1921, congress with no opposition, repealed this drastic sedition act so that it is not now in force. In fact, the senate voted in 1939 to repeal even the sedition section of the espionage act, but the house failed to act on the repealer.

There is no censorship with legal standing, except on communication by mail, telephone, cable or radio with foreign countries. On such foreign communication, the law is strict, and is being strictly enforced.

Within the United States, censorship is purely voluntary. Anyone may say or write what he pleases about the war, but must be prepared to suffer the consequences if what he says or writes violates the law against sedition. Newspapers which violate the sedition section of the espionage act may be barred from the mails; some have been barred in 1942.

Old Shrine Repaired

Special Job Calls for Making New Bricks Look Old.

By JACK SMITH
Wide World Features

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22 — They're putting a new face —and a dirty one—on Independence Hall.

The national shrine is being renovated with lamp black and soot.

When Philadelphia first decided to freshen up the trim little building, which looks more like a village hall than America's cradle, engineers found that 7,000 surface bricks were being crushed under the weight of their 210 years. The problem was to replace them without making the result look like a patchwork of old and new.

The Cope Recipe

So a smart Philadelphia architect, Thomas Tym Cope, ordered the replacement made of the usual clay, but with a dash of lamp black and soot added. Now when a new brick is placed, it looks as colonial as the next one.

The work is part of a $42,000 WPA project. The city, which owns the building, is contributing $7,000 toward the total cost.

Even while the renovation is going on, war-worried Philadelphia is preparing for the day when enemy bombs may reduce democracy's birthplace to rubble.

George Washington hob-nobbed with the white-wigged founding fathers in the cluster of buildings around Independence Square, and the place has important meaning as a symbol of the things for which men of many generations have fought and died.

No Detail Overlooked

So exact drawings have been made—about 70 of them—by which the hall could be rebuilt even to the carved balustrade on the 201-year-old stairway.

A committee for the protection of historic buildings also has drawings of Congress Hall, where the first Continental Congress sat, and of the old city hall, where the United States Supreme Court first convened.

Congress Hall also is being renovated now. Workmen soon will climb into the empty attic to replace oaken joists which were left charred, though still strong, after a fire in a nearby theater several years ago ignited the roof.

KEEP 'EM GUESSING — Workmen are putting brand new "antique" bricks, discolored with lamp black and soot, in the tower of Independence Hall. It takes close inspection to tell the old from the new.

ATTACK ON SIBERIA POSTPONED?

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Thursday, Sept. 22, 1932.

County Auditor Earl E Thomas announced budget estimates of the county's subdivisions for the next year showing a reduction of $123,865 in the grand total.

Will Rogers in his daily dispatch wrote: "Well we are off again to our old trait. We are not supposed to meddle in foreign affairs so we don't tell Germany she 'can't arm'—we 'advise her not to.' Now there's nothing that makes a nation, or an individual as mad as to have somebody say, 'Now this is really none of my business but I'm just advising you.' They never will get anywhere with this disarmament for no nation can tell another nation what they need to defend themselves. That's a personal affair. If I sleep with a gun under my pillow, I don't want somebody across the street to 'advise' me that I don't need it."

Reduction in taxes was demanded by speakers at a public meeting of Marion's "Council of 100" in The Star auditorium. The speakers, all introduced by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, chairman of the council, included Alfred Donithen, Dr. Frederick C. Smith, J. Wilbur Jacoby, A. W. Jones and H. W. Cookston of Marion county and Prof. Edwin Smart of the department of commerce of Ohio State university.

The annual dress-up party of women members of the Marion Country club was held with more than 40 in attendance. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. J. Malcolm Strehtz, Mrs. Dan Evans, Mrs. C. O. Brown and Miss Emma O'Brien.

More than 200 members of Wesley M. E. church and other friends of the pastor, Rev. W. Martell George, attended a supper and reception given at the church recreation rooms in honor of him and his family.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, Sept. 22, 1922.

The 67th session of congress came to a close and congressmen started on their way home to inaugurate a six-week campaign for reelection. The session, which had begun Dec. 5, was described in newspaper dispatches as "tumultuous." It was stated that President Harding would call for an extra session of congress about the middle of November.

Two opposing partisan views of the record of congress were expressed on its final day. Senator Simmons (D) of North Carolina, speaking for the minority, charged the Republican congress with failure and declared its legislative record was "tainted with the influence of Wall Street" Senator McCormick (R) of Illinois, declared the legislative achievements of this congress had reduced the national debt $1,000,000,000 and lifted the nation from industrial paralysis to the path of prosperity.

The jumping of Warren Anson of the Prospect centralized school featured the Marion County Centralized school athletic meet at the county fair. He topped the bar at 5 feet 11 inches while his closest rival, J. Berringer of Pleasant township, was unable to make over 5 feet 6 inches. In a preliminary jump Anson sailed over the bar at 6 feet 1 inch, establishing a new record for Ohio high schools.

At a meeting of Marion lodge No. 402, Knights of Pythias, arrangements were made for S. R. Reber and J. L. Byers to leave Monday to attend a grand lodge meeting at Canton.

The Draft Outlook

Selective Service Seen in "State of Flux."

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—If you are on the uncalled selective service roles or have relatives or a sweetheart there, the best thing you can do at the moment is not let the smoke screen of confusion get you down.

Selective service is in that state of flux which has come to almost everything in the United States war plans. The trouble is that we started building on a foundation far too small and weak for the superstructure this war demands. Now, to save the whole business from collapsing, we have to jack up what building we have, and slide a new foundation under it.

Uncertainty

That already has happened in war industry and it isn't certain yet that the foundation is big enough to carry the load. That is what is happening now in the efforts to solve the problems of inflation and of rubber. That is what is going to happen to manpower—both manpower for the armed forces and manpower for production of supplies for those forces.

It may be done by a complete overhauling of the existing policies of deferment. It may be done by new legislation. But a sure sign that it will be done is the confusion of statements and confusion of thought now emanating from Washington.

Out of the muddle, there are a few things that are becoming pretty certain in the minds of closest Washington observers.

(1). Unless this war collapses within a year, we are going to have an army of 10,000,000 men or more—about two and a half times what we now have.

(2). The 18-19 year old lads will be drafted after the first of the year. There are about 1,000,000, perhaps 1,500,000 in this group. (Committee hearings are starting now on this legislation in both houses of Congress.)

(3.) There undoubtedly will be a suspension of recruiting. The Navy policy (all navy personnel so far is recruited) is all that is holding this up now. The reason for stopping voluntary enlistments is the necessary control of all available manpower. (Shortages of manpower in many communities and a number of industries already have occurred because the boys dashed to the colors before they were called.)

(4). Unmarried men with dependents and married men without children will be called eventually, probably soon, but close attention will be given to avoiding actual hardship cases. (This is just about draft headache No. 1, although there are no priorities on headaches in selective service.)

(5). It is possible that the present size of the Army can be a little better than doubled before it will be necessary to call married men with children. When that time will come is uncertain and can only be guessed at by adding up selective service estimates. Best guess: the end of 1943.

Other than this there is very little worth considering in the prognostications on the future of selective service.

The Women Win

By The Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. — Every evening a couple of middle-aged business men walked several blocks beyond the principal getting-on stations so they could board a bus ahead of the crowds. Once in their choice seats, they conversed earnestly, avoiding glances of the women standees. But the women concocted a plot.

They walked a few blocks beyond where the men boarded the bus, then when the two business men got on the women arose, tapped the men on the shoulders and offered them seats. The fellows declined but the women persisted in standing beside them throughout the homeward journey.

The Turps

By DAMON RUNYON

The Sad Case of a Brooklyn Dodger Who Rested Too Well During Recess Between Wars.

Mr. Joe Turp writes from Brooklyn:

DEAR SIR Last night my wife Ethel (one of the most terrible things are happening in this neighborhood. Mona Clemmons was here today and she told me something that happened to her Uncle Wilbur that is awful. You know he is her favorite uncle and she was crying about it as if her heart would break.

I see Ethel isn't her Uncle Wilbur but your Uncle Ben is always beefing about him. Yes it seems to me I have heard you say Uncle Ben say he is a phony bum. Ethel says that is right Joe. My uncle Ben doesn't like my Uncle Wilbur although they were raised together. But then my Uncle Ben doesn't like a lot of people Joe and sometimes he is wrong. I think Mona's Uncle Wilbur is very nice and is always well dressed and very polite.

I sees all I know about him is your Uncle Ben sees he is a phoney bum and while I admit my Uncle Ben is wrong oftener than he is right sometimes tells me he may have a point there Ethel. I sees the last time I heard your Uncle Ben talking about him he was really running Wilbur inside out. Ethel sees yes it is true my Uncle Ben thinks Mona's Uncle Wilbur did not do right in the last war Joe. That is the one in which my Uncle Ben was a hero.

I SES you mean he was a hero to hear him tell it Ethel but I don't think Wilbur was in that war. Ethel sees no he wasn't Joe but Uncle Ben claims Mona's Uncle Wilbur had his teeth pulled out so he would not have to go to that war although Mona sees he has pyorrhea and I believe her. That makes your teeth very bad Joe. I don't believe anyone would have a thing like that done to themselves just to keep from going to the war.

I sees well I wouldn't think so myself Ethel but I guess your Uncle Ben believes it. She yes he does Joe but I tell you he does not like Mona's Uncle Wilbur. Anyway after his teeth were all pulled out and he had spent a lot of money for some false teeth Mona's Uncle Wilbur was called by his draft board just the same and when the doctors examined him they found he had a bad heart and they would not have taken him even if he had all his teeth. That is why he has not been able to do much work for many years.

I ses O that's the reason is it? I sees I wondered why I never saw that guy do anything except walking around all dressed up Ethel ses yes the doctor told him he would have to rest a lot and he has been resting ever since at Mona's house although her pops sometimes complains about it. But he is also very nice to Mona and she is terribly fond of him and that is why she is all broken up over what has happened to him.

I SES well what happened sweets? Ethel ses why he has been drafted to go to the war that's what has happened Joe. He is 44 years old going on 45 but they called him in the other day and the doctors examined him again and they found out he had rested so well since the last war that his heart is now perfect fine and there is nothing else the matter with him either so he has to go to war.

I ses why didn't he show them those false teeth Ethel? I ses I never saw him but I ses he was grinning so everybody else couldn't see them. I guess he thought people thought it was natural and Ethel ses O he did show them Joe but the doctors ses they didn't make any difference because he was not going to have to bite the enemy in this war.

Yours truly,
Joe Turp.

Analyzing Congress

The present fall of congress from power in public esteem may be due to its drastic need for modernization. If the legislative body adopted up-to-date methods of informing and organizing itself, it might regain its old prestige. At the same time, it might arrest the flow of power to the executive branch of government, according to William Hard, who pleads for congress to investigate itself, in the October issue of the Reader's Digest.

All modern institutions, from the White House to private lobbying groups, keep themselves reformed through experienced experts, Mr. Hard points out. But with a few exceptions, congress has no such trained experts, despite the fact that many of its functions demand precise information not available to the layman.

This lack of specialized knowledge puts congress at a serious disadvantage in opposing executive proposals with plans of its own. The result is that the law-making function of congress becomes increasingly absorbed by the White House, whose expert advisers draft most of our present legislation. And congress is at a loss to suggest any constructive alternatives.

The President is already considering plans for the government's post-war activities, Mr. Hard writes, and White House advisers are depending upon expert information to help them. Before these plans are presented to congress in the form of specific bills, there will undoubtedly be a storm of protest, but, Mr. Hard stresses, there will be nothing better offered in their stead.

Emphasizing the need for a strong congress in a free country, Mr. Hard says that it is the duty of the people to insist upon its continued existence. But he adds that it is the duty of the congress to so modernize itself as to command and justify the faith of the people in it.

A step in this direction, he says, would be a move by congress to coordinate and centralize its committees. He mentions specifically that while it is desirable for congress to keep in touch with the army and navy, its present method of doing so through eight separate committees could be simplified and made more efficient. Moreover, the unwieldy congressional committees system frequently impedes the vitally necessary efficiency of important government agencies and leaders. Donald Nelson has already been questioned and cross-questioned by 22 different committees at a time when every moment of his day should be concentrated on the difficult problems of the War Production Board.

In summarizing congress's need for investigating itself, Mr. Hard says that only two reforms are necessary: "a scientific organization of committees and a scientific use by these committees of up-to-date expert creative knowledge." He concludes that if congress fails to do so, if it fails to provide an informed organized initiative, then the executive will inevitably must take over that function.

"The only way to combat the dictatorial tendency in the world," Mr. Hard states, is to modernize the democratic legislative process."

He straightened. "Doing the best I can, ma'am. Who don't you have lunch with me?"

"Can't," she refused, automatically. "Too busy."

"What do you mean too busy? Th's is Saturday. Even sure-fire lady doctors don't have to work on Saturdays, do they?"

"Well, I really should—"

"Good. Well drive out to the Club and have some golf afterwards." He took her arm firmly, guided her to the sleek tan coupe parked at the curbing.

Without protest, Julie let him put her into the broad seat. She was tired and a round of golf would ease the taut nerves. "Drop by the house first. There may be some messages."

"I will if you promise ahead of time to ignore all summons."

"Maybe." She leaned back against the comfortable seat. "I am weary."

"And glad I came after you?" Bart prompted, smiling a little wryly. "Come on. Tell me you like being taken care of—by me."

"I love it."

"And me too?"

She shook her head. "No no, and you too."

"Tomorrow, will you?"

"Can't promise anything. Tomorrow's a secret."

Julie's heels clicked hollowly on the wide porch steps as she ran. Hulda, the stolid Norwegian housekeeper who ruled the Hamilton household with benevolent despotism, met her at the door.

"Any calls, Hulda?"

"Yust von, Miss Joolie. Miss Kelland wants Dr. Tom should stop in right away." Taking Julie's bag she put it carefully on the old umbrella stand.

"Did you call Dad?"

She nodded and shook her head alternately. "I called him and he was not there. So he was out to Surfside to have a baby."

"Okay. I'll drop by Kelland's on my way out to the Club. Be back about five."

"You should sleep instead of flying out again this way," Hulda scolded gently. "You got black circles under the eyes."

Fear In Her Eyes

Julie laughed, slammed the front door as she went. Black circles under her eyes and butterflies in her tummy. It just wasn't good sense to over-tax her strength. In all her life, she'd never been so tired as she was right this minute.

She stopped at Kelland's long enough to reassure Dawn, explain her father's delay.

"How is your father this morning?" she asked.

"Resting quietly, I think." Dawn's white face seemed drawn, years older suddenly. "But I do hope Dr. Tom gets here soon."

"He will," she promised. Then, "Look, Dawn, you must keep better control over your own nerves. Getting the jitters won't help your father any. Why don't you come out to the Club with us and have a swim or play some golf and relax."

"Thanks. But I couldn't possibly." Dawn shook her head nervously, lit another cigaret from the stub of one she was just finishing.

"Why not?"

"I—that is — I'm expecting guests."

"Rubbish. Have Jarvis explain what has happened."

"No, really. Thank you, Julie. I couldn't possibly."

Julie caught the look in the wide blue eyes now—the same strange fear that she had seen there only hours before when Dawn had heard Dr. Tom's verdict. Dawn was in mortal terror, Julie realized suddenly. All out of proportion to the seriousness of her father's condition.

"Dawn—" On impulse Julie took a step nearer the girl, put out her hand, "is there anything I can do to help?"

Without moving, Dawn seemed to withdraw even farther into herself. "No. Thank you, Julie. Nothing."

Julie hesitated, keeping her smile serene. "Dad will be in to see you shortly, I'm sure. Meanwhile, don't torture yourself with worry. Bye, now."

"Thanks, Julie. 'Bye."

Sinister Face

Julie let herself out the front door, went slowly, thoughtfully down the steps toward the car waiting in the drive. What strange fears could be tearing Dawn so cruelly? She'd seemed so unlike herself. All her cool savoir-faire, her smiling self-confidence taut with strain now. And why? She had never seemed so devoted to her father. In fact their quarrels were no secret. And yet now the knowledge that he would be an invalid made her—not sorrowful so much as terrified!

"All set?" Bart flung open the car door.

Julie nodded. "Tried to get Dawn to come too, but she's having guests."

"And how!" Bart whistled softly then as a flashy green phaeton turned into the private drive. "Pretty smooth, hun? Bet a little buggy like that set him back a small fortune. And boy, look at all that beautiful rubber." Feasting his eyes on the two white-walled tires mounted on the rear. "That's positively tempting fate."

"A disgustingly ostentatious display of wealth," Julie joined in the laugh. "Dawn likes her men—"

Julie stopped in the middle of her thought as she caught sight of the swarthy face behind the wheel. For an instant she met the stranger's glance, piercing black eyes, heavy brows, a skin tanned to the color of weathered saddle leather.

"Tall, dark, and in this case not so handsome," Bart muttered as they passed the car, turned out into the street. "Wonder who that is?"

"I wonder," Julie echoed quietly. "Personally, I wouldn't care to meet that face on a dark night. He looks like a brigand."

Bart laughed. "And probably he's as tame as a pussy cat. Brigands, who are really professional don't go around looking like brigands, you know."

"Well, it will be terribly anti-climactic if there isn't something sinister about him," Julie said flippantly.

"Now look here, Julie my sweet," Bart began severely, reached for her hand. "I didn't waylay you so you could talk to me about some other guy. Let's talk about us."

Julie laughed, tried to let go of the idea that skirted her mind just out of reach of clear logic. "Okay. What shall we say about us?"

"We are nice," Bart began promptly. "We are very becoming to each other. We like the same people. We like the same things. We like each other very much, don't we?"

"Uh-huh," she agreed, smiling a little absently while her thoughts pursued a scurrying idea like fox-hounds on the scent. What constrange terror and her connection was there between Dawn's stranger guest?

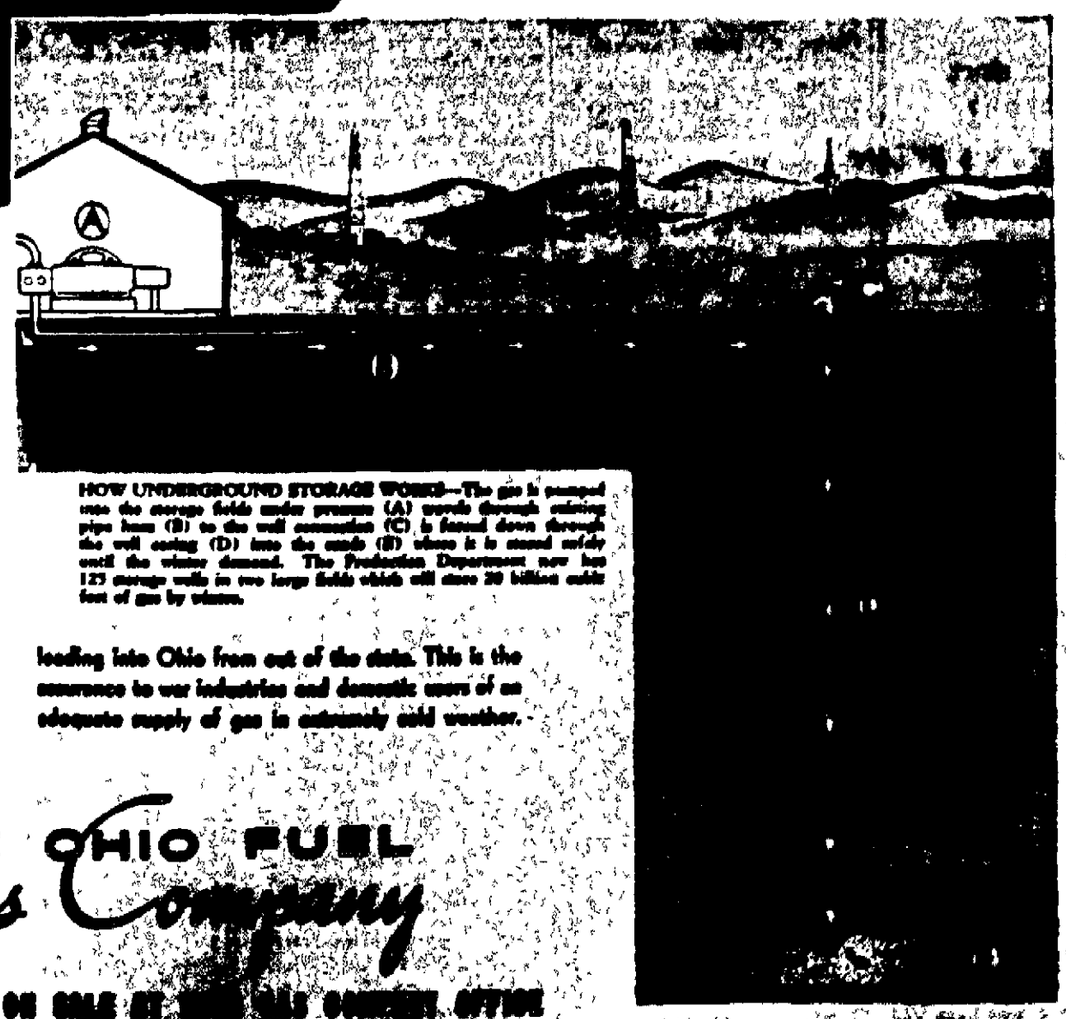
No Need For You To Lay In Your Winter's Gas Supply

WE'RE STORING IT FOR YOU UNDERGROUND

How Underground Storage of Gas Made History Before Pearl Harbor . . .

The man at the left has no problem of fuel storage. Yet, he looks to the winter confident that he and his family will be kept warm by a fuel he can't see but he knows is there, always available. He can do that only because of some farsighted thinking and planning by gas production specialists at The Gas Company. Yes, the discovery of how gas could be stored in depleted wells in the off-peak summer months made history long before Pearl Harbor. But it has been a big factor in making it possible for your gas service to meet the demands of industries since the war, and the needs of domestic customers, too. This is the double duty job of gas service today.

In the summer months when gas pipe lines are not used normally to capacity, gas is brought in from out of the state and stored in two Ohio fields located relatively close to the markets. These fields covering definite limited areas, were almost exhausted from former withdrawals of gas. Located several miles from the fields are high pressure compressors which force the gas to the fields, in through the well heads and back into the porus rock formations far underground. By the time cold weather comes, some 20,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas will be stored for the peak demands of winter. When the conditions demand, the process can be reversed and gas taken from the fields at the rate of 100,000,000 cubic feet a day to supplement the gas supply from regular producing wells and lines leading into Ohio from out of the state. This is the assurance to our industries and domestic users of an adequate supply of gas in extremely cold weather.



HOW UNDERGROUND STORAGE WORKS—The gas is pumped into the storage fields under pressure (A) travels through existing pipe lines (B) to the well connection (C), is forced down through the well casing (D) into the sands (E) where it is stored safely until the winter demand. The Production Department now has 125 storage wells in two large fields which will store 20 billion cubic feet of gas by winter.

JIMMY BROWN STARS AS CARDINALS REPULSE PIRATES, 2-

Brooklyn Keeps Apace by Trimming Phillies; Odds Climb Against Bums.

By The Associated Press

THE chances are [illegible] there in the hall of fame. [illegible] chances of landing the most valuable player award this year are about as bright as one of those [illegible] you can pick up for a dollar.

But when it comes to having a [illegible] the guy who did as much—more—than anyone [illegible] the National League pennant [illegible] Cardinals the National league pennant [illegible] Rochester Brown.

The Cards still have the Bums [illegible] up the Pee Wee. But after their 2-1 win over Brooklyn [illegible] which Second Sacker Brown, incidentally, [illegible] was—they still spotted a 2½-game lead, [illegible] Brooklyn took a 3-1 decision over the Phillies. And second Base [illegible] today, the boys were [illegible] against the Bums.

Hits Only .260

There will no doubt be many arguments over Jimmy Brown, of course. The folks talk about Mort Cooper's assists and the awful things Country Slaughter does to pitchers. And when you mention Jimmy, they generally brush him off with, "Oh, yeah, he's pretty good, too, but he's only batting .260." Yet, National league managers say he's the key man in the whole the guy who holds the infield together. And opposing pitchers shudder when he gets on base, because they tell you "he'll steal anything."

It should also be pointed out that it's not so much what Jimmy does while he's in there — but what the Cardinals do when he's out. For in the last three seasons—1939, '40 and '41 — it was while Jimmy was on the shelf with assorted ailments that the Cards blew their chances. And as soon as he got back into action, they thundered down the stretch.

Frank Merriwell

Naturally, all this sounds like something out of Frank Merriwell, but just to polish it off, don't forget that he was on the sidelines only six days this year. And from the day he came back in mid-August, the Cards started the surge that has carried them to 36 victories in 43 games.

Yesterday, he pulled one out of the fire almost without any help. In the fourth inning, he singled the first run home. Then, after the Bucs tied it up, he drilled a hit through the infield in the ninth to knock the game-wrecker across. Meanwhile, the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead in the first frame against the Phils and hung onto it, although Kirby Higbe was in more tough spots than a rubber check specialist.

Mary Breuer looked like a sure winner for the Yankees over the Red Sox as he allowed only one hit for eight innings. Then Ted Williams' 36th homer tied it up in the ninth and Tony Lupien's single in the 11th gave Boston a 3-2 decision and Tex Hughson his 21st win of the year. In the only other big league game of the day, Detroit rolled over the Chicago White Sox 6-4.

SEEKS WAR JOB

He added that he did not know to what branch he would be assigned if accepted by the procurement office. Gowdy was the first major league ball player to enter military service in World War I.

COLUMBUS RED BIRDS COP A. A. PLAYOFF TITLE FROM TOLEDO

Stop Mud Hens, 6-1, for Fourth Straight Victory.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Sept. 22 — The rampant Columbus Red Birds captured the American association playoff crown last night by sporting their fourth straight victory over Toledo and will enter their fifth "Little World Series" in 16 years.

The Reds opponent will be the winner of the Syracuse-Jersey City series in the International league. Syracuse now is leading three games to none.

The Birds wrapped up the association crown 6 to 1 at Toledo behind the stellar three-hit pitching of Red Munger, concluding a rout begun last Friday night with a 9 to 0 triumph. The Birds won Saturday night 6 to 4 and Sunday 2 to 1.

The Ohio State Journal said it was "fairly definite" the Little World Series would start here, probably Thursday night if Syracuse winds up its set with Jersey City today. The paper added that on the basis of present information it would be a two-three-two affair—the first two games here, three in Syracuse, and two more here, if needed.

The Birds won the series last year from Montreal. Their previous series were in 1937, when they lost to Newark; 1934, when they beat Toronto; 1933, when they beat Buffalo, and 1907, when they lost to Toronto.

The playoff victory climaxed a spectacular season. Columbus finished third in the pennant chase, behind Kansas City and Milwaukee, after a stretch drive that saw the teams separated by not more than one and a half games.

Columbus whipped Kansas City four games to three in the preliminary playoffs, while fourth-place Toledo trounced Milwaukee in four of six games.

The playoff title was worth $3,000 of the $12,000 players' pool.

ERIE BEATS CANTON FOR PLAYOFF TITLE

Score Fourth Straight Win Over Terriers, 2-0.

By The Associated Press

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 22—The Erie Sailors, third in the Mid-Atlantic league's pennant campaign, defeated Canton, 2 to 0, last night to win the Shaughnessy playoffs in four straight games.

The triumph came on the strong arm of Red Bartleson, who doled out only four hits, none of them beyond the infield. Only one Canton batter got past first base, and he took second on an error. The playoff title revived an old refrain heard 'round the loop last spring. It was to the effect that Erie was the team to beat because it had a greater proportion of seasoned material than any other. But the Sailors threatened only once during the summer to take the league leadership away from Charleston, and several times dipped deep in the standings.

Charleston won the pennant, Dayton was a close second, and Canton came in fourth.

Erie required five games to edge Dayton in the three-out-of-five preliminary playoff, while Canton smothered Charleston in three straight.

Then Erie opened up in the final set and swept through to her four successive victories.

Cards' Pitching Staff Is Series Menace to Yanks

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—"Sure," conceded the American leaguer man to the National leaguer. "I wouldn't be surprised to see Mort Cooper pitch a whale of a game against the Yankees. They can be pitched to like any other club. Cooper might hold them to four or five hits and maybe a single run."

The National leaguer beamed his surprise, but before he could think up a suitable reply, his antagonist continued:

"And you know what'll probably happen to Cooper? Spud Chandler or Ernie Bonham or somebody else on the Yankee staff will be having a hot day and Cooper will get beat about 1 to 0. That's what I mean about Cooper not winning the series for the Cardinals."

The writer regards this as a graphic summing-up of the pitching potentialities of the two clubs that probably will play the first game of the big series a week from tomorrow in St. Louis.

Staffs Compared

If the Yankees have the best pitching staff in baseball, as is widely believed, then the St. Louis Cardinals certainly have the second best.

It should be one of the best pitched world series in a long time, with the scoring exceptionally low.

While Cooper, with his fine fast ball and great variety of stuff, is the one who will have to turn the Yankees back a time or two if the Cards are to have a hope of winning the series, he lacks considerable of being the "Cardinal staff." In Max Lanier and Ernie White the club has a pair of corking good southpaws, and in Johnny Beazley, the freshman pitching sensation of the National league.

The Yankees have vivid recollections of the Card hurlers from their spring exhibition series, which the Cards won six games to three. In conversation the individual Yankees assert frankly that Cooper, Lanier and White will be "tough."

Yankee Staff

The Yankee staff, led by big Ernie Bonham with 20 wins and only five losses, probably is every bit as good as the one that held Brooklyn to 11 runs in five series games a year ago. Behind Bonham are Spud Chandler and Hank Borowy.

Red Ruffing, a veteran now but still one of the game's greatest spot pitchers, likely will square off against Cooper in the opener. His record of six world series victories against a single loss is unrivaled among today's pitchers.

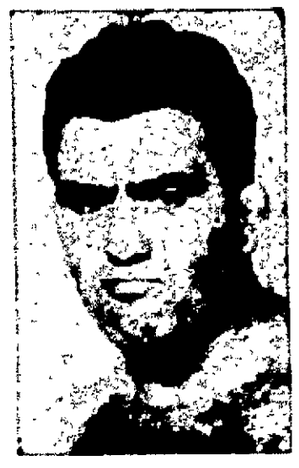
WILD BILL ZIMOVICH



MARTINO ANGELO

These two brutes, and four equally brutal brutes, will tangle Thursday night in the armory gymnasium in a six-man battle royal feature. Others in the fight are Buddy Knox of Nashville, Tenn., Fred Carone of Boston, Axel Madsen of Denmark and Billy Venable of Dallas, Tex. All have appeared here before and with one or two exceptions, all are big favorites with local mat customers. In a battle royal feature, the two first men to lose out do not return for further work. The next two to be downed meet in the semi-final match and the finalists tangle in the main-go attraction.

NEW YORK, Sept 22—The army emergency relief experts to clear about $250,000 from the eight games played by the two all-army football teams—after paying all expenses, cutting the pros in for sizeable shares and in some cases splitting with other charities. Figures won't be ready until all the bills are in, but unofficial estimates are that about 265,000 fans turned out and paid about two bucks apiece.

Today's Guest Star—Francis E. Stan, Washington Evening Star: "The Louis-Conn affair is one scrap drive worthy of support, but if the war department condones expenses that may be as much as $250,000, it can't be considered an all-out war effort Offhand, we can't recall reading where Ensign Gay, Lieut. Bulkley and a lot of bona fide heroes were given bonuses to pay off their back taxes and debts, so why Louis and Conn?"

Third Little World Series Game Tonight

S. W. O. C. 1940 and Coca-Cola clash in the third Little World Series softball championship game tonight at 6:30 in Lincoln park. If S. W. O. C. wins, Coca-Cola will be automatically eliminated from the tourney. A Coca-Cola victory would require a third game between the two teams. In a first round scrap, S. W. O. C. won, 6-5, over Coca-Cola. Last Thursday S. W. O. C. became the tourney favorite by upsetting a powerful Greenwood No. 1 team, 7-6.

LOUISIANA STATE IS FIRST TEXAS A. & M. FOOTBALL OPPONENT

Long-Range Planning Program May Again Produce Title Team.

By The Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Sept. 22 — There's nothing set about Texas A. & M.'s style of football which accounted for two championships and one tie in the Southwest conference over a three-year period.

For instance the 1941 team has the passingest outfit in the conference, features the best punting and a terrific ground attack.

But there are two things that changes. They are the result of long-range planning and whether you was a good example. Norton for two years developed Dan Merkel as a passer without letting him in competition.

To Use Deception.

When the opening whistle is set for a hard running attack. Merkel pitches the ball all over the lot and before anyone realized it the Aggies had scored up the championship.

Well, this year's team is going in for deception, again the result of long-range planning. The guy Norton will send in to make the offense click started fooling that kind of stuff as freshmen.

The man in motion will be the key to the offense. Norton considers this the best method of spreading defenses and the Aggies appear to have what it takes to get the job done.

Norton thinks he will field a team that "will make it interesting for everybody." However, he points out two handicaps.

There is not a lettterman available at tackle and under the new emergency speed-up program through which a boy can complete school in three years the guard isn't getting enough time for practice as compared to the other conference members.

But these things haven't prevented the critics from establishing the Aggies as favorites to win their second straight championship—something no school in the conference ever has done before.

Lee Daniels is the spark of the backfield—a passer, runner and punter who surpassed Moser in the final games last year. Willie Zapalac returns at blocking back, Jake Webster at fullback and Cullen Rogers at wingback. A fifth backfield letterman is Bob Williams. They call him swingback because he goes in at any of the four positions.

Bill Henderson, rated by Norton as America's best pass-receiver, and Elvis (Boots) Simmons are the ends.

The schedule: Sept. 26—Louisiana State at Baton Rouge. Oct. 3—Texas Tech at College Station. Oct. 10—Corpus Christi Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi. Oct. 17—Texas Christian at College Station. Oct. 24—Baylor at Waco. Oct. 31—Arkansas at College Station. Nov. 7—Southern Methodist at Dallas. Nov. 14—Rice at Houston. Nov. 26—Texas at Austin. Dec. 5—Washington State at San Antonio.

Rough Scrimmages Out A Harding Prepares for Open

Coach Dorris Introduces "Tap" Football To Ins Crippled Team Against Further Injuries.

In preparing for Friday night's [illegible] game, Harding Coach Victor A. Dorris is taking [illegible] precautions to protect an already crippled team from further injuries which might cost the Presidents a defeat. The Cowboys of Columbus West High will attempt to shatter Harding's long victory string in the Presidents' first start Friday night at 8:30 in Harding stadium.

Hard scrimmages are out for the remainder of this week as far as the varsity team is concerned. Replacing the rough "block-it-kick" type of scrimmage is a system of touch football. And after [illegible] the fleet-footed Hardingites the second team last night, your correspondent can [illegible] you that the new type of play has not hampered Harding's effectiveness.

In fact, it has [illegible] couple of weak spots [illegible] veiled at least two new candidates. Coach Dorris preferred to keep the names of new backfield possibilities a secret to be unleashed on Columbus West and the Central Ohio league foes [illegible] the two youths is [illegible] handling the passing [illegible] efficiently.

These men, combined with known Harding speed [illegible] may be the solution to the problem which has warmed [illegible] chief of staff no little.

Three youths, all of [illegible] calibre, are temporarily on the shelf, but may be ready for [illegible] amounts of work [illegible] time Friday. They are Pete Frank Louck and [illegible] Daley.

Ruhl, who normally [illegible] to 50 yards, was almost [illegible] starter Friday night [illegible] leg injury began [illegible] week. While coaches are [illegible] certain how serious the [illegible] it may keep him on the [illegible] for at least part of the [illegible]

Daley, a junior [illegible] suffering from a [illegible] along with Louck, a [illegible] Both will probably see [illegible] ice Friday.

To Handle Kicking

Harold Jenkins, one [illegible] fastest backfield performers [illegible] recent Harding football [illegible] is expected to be in [illegible] the opener after [illegible] week's practice sessions [illegible] of a torn shoulder ligaments [illegible] kins will do most of the [illegible] and a large share of the [illegible] this year, Coach Dorris [illegible] cated.

"Newark," Coach Dorris [illegible] last night, "was not [illegible] better than Columbus West Friday night. They were [illegible] two touchdowns better, be[illegible] Three of Newark's scores [illegible] direct results of fluke [illegible]

Coach Dorris is not [illegible] much on West's opener [illegible] the Newark Wildcats "[illegible] most the entire game [illegible] in the hole and were used [illegible] open up scoring plays".

Practice sessions will [illegible] tinue today. Wednesday [illegible] Thursday night at 7:45 under [illegible] lights at Harding stadium.

The Harding sophomores [illegible] der the direction of Coach [illegible] ard Hoffman will go to [illegible] Friday afternoon for a [illegible] scheduled to start at 3:45.

SERIOUS CHARGES FACED BY SUSPECT

Man Who Escaped at Bucyrus Wanted.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 22—Serious federal charges are awaiting the arrest of the Chicago and Detroit gunman, who escaped from Crawford county law enforcement officials a week ago following a shooting affray with a deputy sheriff west of Bucyrus, Sheriff Albert H. French disclosed today.

FBI agents and Detroit and Chicago law officers have been cooperating with the local sheriff's office in identifying the gunman, whom federal officers said is wanted in Detroit for kidnapping, rape and stealing an automobile and driving across the state boundry. The man, whose name officials declined to disclose, is also wanted in Chicago for a mail truck robbery. Impersonating an officer and for stealing a car and driving it out of the state.

The car which the gunman abandoned when he escaped on foot from officers here and stolen clothing and jewelry left in the car, have been turned over to federal agents. The clothing included a complete police uniform belonging to the Detroit department, stolen in that city when the suspect formerly was employed in an apartment house as assistant janitor, and which the gunman donned to hold up and rob a Chicago mail truck. The jewelry has also been identified as that stolen at the same apartment house.

The man made his escape from Deputy Sheriff Ralph Schreck at Point Place filling station west of Bucyrus when Schreck was called to the station to investigate the suspects suspicious actions. Station attendants told officers that the man had been loitering about the station for more than an hour attempting to trade a spare wheel and new tire from the stolen car for gasoline. He escaped in a corn field in the darkness after emptying his gun at Deputy Schreck, who escaped injury from the bullets although one passed close enough to his sleeve to cause burns.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

First Aiders

THE COURSES in First Aid which are now being given in many parts of the country are certainly a step for the best. A good many lives would be saved if more people knew what to do, but that is to be expected. Some of the great sticklers for the competent and prompt are apt to overdo everything else a little.

As I see more first aiders in action, I am not a little my practical criticism as to what they try to do to help. A person was struck down on the street or injured in the home. Immediately the first aider sets to work with a will, but not without a period of rest and thought as to what is the best thing to do for a while. He presently has the patient undressed, and is feeling over the body in search of broken bones. It is not necessary to go at it right away after the fracture.

What a first aider does in a great fright after an emergency is based largely on the knowledge of what not to do. How many times have I seen the results of hard application to legs, only to find, surprising that it may be, communicated to a class of first aiders in First Aid and First Degree.

We have quite the student of First Aid there is like the old story that is put on the mouth of the great Irish doctor, William Stokes. He had a young man just starting on the practice of medicine who asked him to hear what advice the great man could give him. At the end, just as the young man was leaving, Dr. Stokes said "Oh, and one thing more, Charley. Remember don't do too much."

This applies doubly to the first aider.

People instinctively seem to have an impulse to rub a sick person. Now rubbing never does anybody any good. If an acute condition is present. Massage is all right for chronic condition, but note acute. And it has great potentialities for harm. A bone may be just a little bit broken, but in good condition. Your amateur first aider comes along and begins to rub and stroke and really breaks the bone. The same is true of dislocations.

When bleeding is present there is one simple thing to do and remember which will save the first aider a lot of mental anguish. He is taught that with arterial bleeding he should put a constriction above the point of bleed and with venous bleeding, below. But he can't always tell which is which in the presence of an actual case.

Let me let you in on a secret. Neither can the surgeon always tell. But if you take a clean handkerchief and press down directly over the spot of bleeding you will be able to control it till the doctor gets there.

There is one final decision the first aider has to make and that is when the victim wants to get up, shall you let him get up. This takes a little more than ordinary knowledge and you really have to apply some fundamental principles to make a decision.

First ask yourself whether there is any broken bone. Usually this comes down to finding out whether over the injured part there is a peculiar grating sound called crepitus, made by the ends of the broken bone. Second, count the pulse. If there is internal bleeding it will certainly be over 80 and probably over 90.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

LILLIAN'S calm voice and steady eyes gave me notice that I might expect equally as many degrees of success better I should find out that after all, indeed I was not destined to be its victim.

I saw clearly that Lillian was in no mood for an ultimatum appeal. "I have no doubt you believe everything she told you," I said. "That was one reason why father hesitated to send her over here. He felt, as we did when he sent you to the farm, that your gullible emotional anxiety for Marion would distort your common sense and keen perception, leaving you an easy victim to Carolyn's machinations."

I put up my hand in a restraining gesture as she gave a tempestuous exclamation.

"You promised to hear me out," I said, "and I have never known you to break your word. But I must warn you that it will not be pleasant to hear what I have to tell, and that it will take a long time. Shall we sit down?"

Without a word she seated herself, and I placed a chair opposite her, so that my eyes could meet hers in the duel of resolution.

"I see now, Lillian," I began, "that we have been wrong in keeping from you some of the incidents of our investigation into Marion's disappearance."

She kept her word to say nothing, but her eyes flamed angry reproach.

"We knew how much you thought of Carolyn," I went on, "and that we couldn't help find Marion by telling you what we had found out about Carolyn's sinister activities. So we simply told you the truth, as far as it went—that Carolyn insisted she knew nothing that could shed any light on Marion's disappearance. That was what she protested from the first, but we soon found out she was lying.

Trip to Wolfhampton

"You are not in a mood," I went on, "to listen to any reminder on my part that the search for Marion is my paramount interest just now. But I expect you to be just enough to admit that I have had a good deal of experience with adolescent girls. So shut out prejudice and preconceived ideas, if you can, and let me tell you what really happened at Wolfhampton when we went up there to see Carolyn."

Clearly Lillian was in no mood to give me any cooperation, but her attitude as she settled back in her chair told me that I had scored. If ever so slightly I felt that while she listened to me Carolyn's emotional sway over her would be pushed, at least temporarily, into the background.

I do not remember ever working harder at a mental task than I did in constructing my first report to Mr. Dalymont. I remember dwelling upon the mental state of Carolyn by the two daughters in their desperate attempt to keep away from Dicky and me, including the shocking affair so nearly cost Dicky his life.

I told also of Carolyn's telephone conversation with the young gangster, on which Ronald had eavesdropped, and of Carolyn's attempts to tell the gangster where I was to be seated in the train to New York.

Then I told of the gangster's attempt to get Marion's letter from me, on the train, and his telephoned instructions to a gunman in the city to get the letter and dispose of me at the same time. Then I spoke measuredly.

"That is the man with whom Carolyn wishes to get in contact. She has tried her wiles on everybody else in vain, and now she cunningly has played upon your intense anxiety for Marion.

"But you must believe me, Lillian. To let Carolyn go would not help Marion, and might do her incalculable harm. Besides, we are sure that one reason for Marion's going away was in order to shield Carolyn."

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Sept. 23

A BRILLIANT opening for accomplishing some outstanding performance in the direction of a cherished goal or worthwhile objective is seen from the predominant planetary operations. However, while the aims and ambitions may be lifted to such progress and achievement, there are disruptive or thwarting undercurrents to hinder and postpone if not entirely obstruct. It might be possible to fortify this frustrating situation by the aid of well-established bodies or organizations, business, political or fraternal.

Those whose birthday it is might be given the brilliant opportunity to reach a cherished goal of accomplishment or progress, with honors, profit and fulfilled ambitions, but for a matter seeming to obstruct, delay or decisively set aside, at least for the time being. Help may come from peculiar sources, with large organizations or major employers bridging the obstacle, which might possibly be caused by ill-health or a family illness or bereavement. An inheritance or other worthwhile benefit may accrue.

A child born on this day may have much efficiency and high ideals and ambitions, assisted by peculiar or unusual cooperations, although its health or a family affliction may prove an obstructing force. It may inherit or enjoy gifts.
